Sue Talberg

She moved here this past winter from a senior facility in Big Lake. She was born in Iowa but moved to Princeton, Minnesota, with her family at the age of fourteen. While in high school, Bruce Talberg, son of a dairy farmer, asked her to be his date for the homecoming dance. That was the beginning of a relationship which led to marriage soon after both of them graduated. Sue found work in security while Bruce continued working with his father for the first ten years of marriage. Sue soon became busy caring for the family of five. Three sons and two daughters. The couple began building a new house twenty-one years ago, when Sue's husband died unexpectedly after being hit by a car while crossing a street on foot. The builder then walked off the job, believing that a woman would not be able to make the decisions and pay for finishing the home, even though she was employed. She then lived with one of her sons for two years. While one of her sons was serving in the armed forces the family honored him by placing a lighted flag at the front of their house. As a protest to that war, the flag was stolen, then taken to the town center and burned along with several others. All of Sue's children are employed and now live in various Minnesota areas, not far from Sue's new home here. Pernell is in St. Cloud, Curtis in Foley, Daniel in Freeport, April in Big Lake and Jodi in North Branch. Sue's love and pride of her grand and great grandchildren is evident when one visits her apartment on second floor. She has pictures of them uniquely displayed in a room divider in her living room. One grandson has carried on his families' beginning tradition, as he manages a herd of registered dairy cattle. A granddaughter with an unusual occupation works at The Rapture Center, which is a rehab center for animals. An interesting hobby that Sue has enjoyed was sewing pillows given to an agency serving women in need. She now likes to read and is joining the Book Club here at Riverview. She has chosen a meal plan of eating breakfast and dinner in the dining room, so perhaps many have already met this friendly new resident. Welcome, Sue!

Employee Monkey Business

Featuring: Molly Kiellszewski, RN

What is the best kind of food for a food fight? If I was feeling wild I would pick some tomatoes, condiments, ice cream, Jello and so on. The messier the better. Nothing boring like a piece of bread.

If you could be the best in the world at something, what would it be? Multitasking & remembering things wouldn't that be every nurses dream!

If there was one chore you never had to do again, what would it be? Laundry, mopping, dishes! All the never ending tasks. Oh and vacuuming because as soon as I finish there is dog hair in every corner.

What is your favorite thing about working at Riverview Landing? Getting to know the residents and who they are as people. I'm very blessed to get to know my residents on a personal level. I feel honored to have them know who I am in this busy, large environment. My co-workers are a favorite as well, I don't think I could function without them.

Happy Birthday

"Don't Sweat the Small Stuff... and It's All Small Stuff"

By: Richard Carlson

This book has been around for a long time but is still highly relevant. Full of short, pithy chapters such as Set Aside Quiet Time Every Day, Don't Interrupt Others or Finish Their Sentences, Do Something Nice for Someone Else—and Don't Tell Anyone About it and Let Others Have the Glory, "Don't Sweat the Small Stuff" is a good reminder for us all.
